Appealing Website: <https://eksisozluk.com>

a. What is the URL of the website?

<https://eksisozluk.com>

b. Does this page use tables?

No. The layout is implemented using modern HTML with flex and grid structures, not tables.

c. Does this page use CSS?

Yes, extensively. CSS is used for layout, typography, color themes (including dark/light mode), and hover effects.

d. Is this page appealing?

Yes.

Three reasons:

1. Clean and user-friendly interface.
2. Optional dark mode.
3. Clear content structure and hierarchy.

e. If this page is unappealing, what would you do to improve it?

The search bar could be made more visible and permanently accessible.

Unappealing Website: <http://www.meb.gov.tr>

a. What is the URL of the website?

<http://www.meb.gov.tr>

b. Does this page use tables?

Yes. The homepage uses table-like block layouts which are outdated and not ideal for modern design.

c. Does this page use CSS?

Yes, but in a limited and outdated fashion. Some styling exists for text and colors, but lacks modern responsiveness and visual clarity.

d. Is this page appealing?

No.

Three reasons:

1. Cluttered with too much information.
2. Poor mobile responsiveness.
3. Weak visual hierarchy and outdated typography.

e. If this page is unappealing, what would you do to improve it?

I would implement a responsive design using CSS Grid/Flexbox, reduce information overload, and improve visual structure with better layout and modern typography.
